

On the Subject of Indentation

Spin the black circle!

- The circle shown on the bomb will have both concave and convex points. A concave point is represented in the table below by the circle being white, while a convex one is represented by a black circle.
- To disarm the module, press the spot on the module (with respect to the current orientation) that is marked with the arrows.

